not an act.
It is a Habit.”

Lennie Segal, owner of Koalaty Cleaners

Whoever said clothes don't make the man or woman surely never experienced the confidence that comes from buttoning a crisp, freshly pressed shirt, or the transforming power of an elegantly tailored suit. At Koalaty Cleaners, we believe that presentation matters. We believe that details should not be overlooked and we believe our clients deserve to look their best... always.

Nothing is more frustrating than putting on a freshly cleaned shirt and have one of the buttons break or missing. This is one of the many reasons Lennie Segal got into the Dry-Cleaning business. “For 13 years I wore a suit and tie and couldn't find a decent dry-cleaner.”

“I knew what I wanted in a dry-cleaner and I knew how I wanted to be treated as a customer.”

So I opened my own dry-cleaning business in 1999. We specialized in providing the highest quality cleaning and the highest level of customer service. Providing that kind of quality and service was personally very rewarding. Yet, with those rewards came many sacrifices for my family, and me so when I was approached to sell my stores a couple of years ago I did. I took some time off to spend with my wife and two small children (ages 2 and 4 at the time). After two years (and at the urging of former customers) it was time to get back in the business.

Koalaty Cleaners was a concept I had thought about years ago. I would drive by Koalaty Park (next to Carroll Elementary School) everyday and thought, “What a great name for a dry-cleaner!” So when I decided to give dry cleaning another try the name had already been determined. I took what I learned from my previous experiences and improved on it.

Improvements start with the latest in dry-cleaning technology. That's right; technology hasn't missed the dry-cleaning business. Everything from the Environmentally Friendly Solvent, the Point of Sale software & hardware, the presses, the cleaning machines, the assembly machines, even the delivery vans have been updated to better serve the needs of our customers.

With having made so many improvements you can trust Koalaty when we say “We Care...For your Wear.” At Koalaty Cleaners we don't use perchloroethylene or “Perc”. Our solvent is Environmentally Friendly! Have your clothes cleaned at Koalaty and you'll notice several things...NO Odor—NO Dye Fade, and the soft feel of properly laundered silks, rayons & linens. Your clothes will always come back smelling fresh, expertly pressed and tailored with all the buttons in place. Not to mention our Fast, Friendly Customer Service Reps are committed to making your visit to Koalaty as enjoyable as possible.
